

Belong

As a group discuss who is a planner and who is not. Talk about why you approach life the way you do.

What challenges does this lesson present for you in your workplace? How can you adhere to the principle that James instructs and still complete the planning required in your workplace?

Grow

Read James 4:13-17. To which early church members do you think James is directing these verses ? Why? To whom would these verses apply today?

Share about a time in your life when God’s plan was different than yours. How did things work out?

Discuss as a group how really embracing the ideas of James 4:13-17 might change the way we live.

Is James saying that it is wrong to plan for the future? What do you think is sinful in the attitude of these people?

What solution does James offer in verse 15? Why is it so important for Christians to live this way?

What is the “right thing” James is referring to in verse 17? When do we forget to do the “right thing?”

Read Luke 12:16-21. How is this parable from Jesus similar to James 4:13-17?

How do you pray about your plans before you make them? What practical steps have you learned over the years about praying through plans and trusting God with the outcomes?

“Released Leader” Blog

Ever wonder how God is at work at Fellowship? I would like to remind you about our monthly blog, “Released Leader,” designed to tell stories of how our church is producing and releasing leaders throughout NWA and the world. “Released Leader” showcases God at work. This resource will give you practical ways to grow as a leader and encourage you with stories of life-change happening throughout the congregations. Each month covers a key topic from the perspective of a leader within our church body. October's post, by Ed Parrish, “Living a Life of Prayer” reminding us to “Worry about nothing... Pray about everything... Experience the peace of God” (Phil 4:6-8 NLT). Check it out and subscribe to future posts at releasedleader.org or let us know if you have a story to share.
